Co-Ops Sell Tobacco

October sales of tobocco held by the receivers of the defunct tri-state Tobacco Growers' Co-Operation Association, totalled $274,905.74, the receivers reported to Federal Judge Meekins.

The sales averaged 73.81 per cent of the bankers' valuations for domestic sales and 76.69 per cent for foreign sales.

The October receipts totalled $405,165.93 while the disbursements aggregated $385,856.26 of which $350,191.92 was used to pay on borrowed money for operation expenses.

Accounts due October 31 totalled $2,715,992.36 as compared with $8,703,200 on June 19, 1926, the date of the receivership.

Thanksgiving Day and Why We Observe It

The United States is the one Nation of the world that, by Act of the Chief Executive, sets aside one day annually for the public expression of gratitude to the Almighty God for the blessings of the twelve months just ended. That righteous and worthy custom, established first by the handful of Pilgrims during the hardships of winter on the bleak coast of Massachusetts Bay, has become an annual tribute paid cheerfully by a nation of more than 100,000,000 people. It is one of the few national holidays that has not been distorted in its observance. A day of feasting and a day of thanksgiving, it remains; and if, at times, it seems the emphasis is laid rather upon the 'feast' than upon the 'thanks,' yet it stands as an annual tribute of gratitude for the good which God has given. Thanksgiving crowns the year, it is the culminating point where we look back at a time on the whole blest with great favor from God; but the year has had its trials which we are glad to have passed. We would not wish to live the year over again.

Thanksgiving is the day of bountiful harvest. We sit at tables of plenty, we dwell in happy communities, in a land richer than any other. There are some regions famine struck, they are starving, poor, there is pinching want. Are we not thankful that our region is not in that condition? But Thanksgiving came in spite of sorrow. The autumn is a time of decay as well as of harvest. There is a minor key struck in the soul as the summer dies; yet there is rest in the gathered fruit, and we feel that all things work for our good.

There is more light than shadow. There is the light of home, country, love and worship. The harvest came with toil. God watched it and gave the increase, but only to the faithful worker. The idler has a harvest of weeds. What harvest have we gathered? Is it a ripened purpose or a vacant resolution? Is it right to rejoice in God's gifts, if we have not deserved them? We may.

We should be thankful for a national prosperity, religious prosperity, for united people, for the removal of an apprehensive government from the western hemisphere, for the courage, heroism and patriotism of the American people.

We should spend the day joyously, religiously and helpfully.

In as much as we are sinners and have forfeited the blessings which we daily receive, what can be more suitable than, that we should humbly thank the Almighty Power from whom comes such an inexhaustible supply of goodness to us so utterly undeserving.

MISS VIRGINIA RANSONE,

ROCKS NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Ranson and little son spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. B. D Dickerson.

Miss Dorothy Marsh, of Lynchburg, spent the week-end at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Tom Marsh.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Almond and children, of Lynchburg, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Almond.

Mr. and Mrs. Real Baldwin had some of their friends from Lynchburg as their Sunday guests.

Ever Ready 4-H Club met Friday night at the home of Mrs. D. W. Dinkins, the leader.

Mrs. Lacy Martin's arm, which she hurt very seriously Nov. 12th, is better. It was not broken.

Mr. Hubert Martin and Mr. Boothe, of Lynchburg, were week-end visitors in this vicinity.

Mr. W. F. Ransone is entertaining his friends to-day at a corn-shucking.

The hunters are very busy around here now; it is needless to say the rabbit population is growing smaller day by day.

INVENTS LOCK TO FOIL BANK BANDITS

Prevents Instant Seizure and Quick Getaway.

New York.—A system for frustrating robberies by delaying bandits until the police arrive is to be introduced in banks throughout the country, it was announced here recently by the Sargent & Greenleaf company, whose president, W. R. Hill of Rochester, N. Y., has invented a device known as the "timelmation" lock. With the new principle of lock operation safe doors cannot open until a predetermined time after the combination has been released.

The timelmation—a combined time and combination lock—can be set for any period from 10 minutes to 72 hours. Thus, almost instant seizure of funds and a quick getaway is a feat automobile—the bold procedure of the modern rele—are to be mat by overcoming the advantage of speed, upon which criminals depend for their success.

Under the system outlined by Hill, banks and brokerage houses would have their vaults set to open for brief intervals at various times during the day, when enough cash could be taken out until the next opening. In the event that bank officials were compelled to open the combinations of the vaults, a predetermined time interval would have to elapse before the doors could swing open and give access to the vaults.

The same principle is to be applied in the transportation of large sums of cash in heavy chests equipped with timelmations fixed so they cannot be opened for several hours.

A questionnaire to police chiefs throughout the United States and in European capitals, Hill said, confirmed his belief that in bank robberies, as in fires, the first few minutes are more important than the succeeding hours or days in the prevention of robberies and apprehension of the criminals.

Methodists Plan Big World Meeting in 1928

Kansas City.—Annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church all over the world are electing delegates to the general conference to convene here May 1, 1928.

Church problems will be discussed and plans formulated by 850 delegates, half of whom are ministerial and half lay representatives. Possibility of union between the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church, South, is seen in the fact that members of the southern church have been appointed on reception committees and will attend some of the sessions.

From 1773 to 1784 all traveling ministers were members of the annual conference which met for "conversation or conference."

For some years there were quadrennial conferences in Baltimore. In 1808 a demand for a delegated membership was lost on the first vote, 65 to 57. When the ministers packed their saddle bags and prepared to return home, another vote was taken and the delegated general conference came into being.

A movement has been launched to cut down the 1928 number and action is expected at the May meeting.

Sitting Bull's Nephew May Run for Congress

Pierre, S. D.—One of the possibilities of the next campaign in South Dakota is that of a full-blood Sioux Indian getting his name for congress from the third Congressional district.

This from the fact that Chauncey Yellow Robe, who has contracted his name to Chauncey Robe, is being urged as the Democratic candidate to oppose Congressman William Williamson in the next campaign. The plan for the reason that he will be expected to receive the support of his people in that district, which has been able to hold the congressional representative for a number of times, and that he will secure the rather important Indian vote of that district.

Robe is a nephew of old Sitting Bull, who was prominent in the affairs of the Northwest a half-century ago. He has a college education, and presided at the ceremony by which President Coolidge was made a member of the Sioux tribe at Deadwood.

That's Good

Washington.—When a man under oath guesses wrong about the age of a girl it is not perjury, a District of Columbia grand jury decided in refusing to indict Victor Nishmure on that charge.

Doctors Use Planes to Visit Isolated Towns

Melbourne, Australia.—An aviation medical service is being organized by the Australian government.

All the important hospitals throughout the country will have a fleet of airplanes at their command and will be in touch by wireless with the interior small towns and desert stations.

When needed, doctors will be transported by plane to the point indicated, and in cases of emergency the patient will be taken by air to the nearest hospital.

Of the Making of Books

And further, by these, my son, be admonished: of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness to the flesh.—Ecclesiastes 12:12.

Lucky Child!

During its first year, a normal baby sleeps at least two-thirds of the time. —Liberty.

Captured

Campbell county officers Friday night raided and destroyed a fifty-gallon still near Concord, which resulted in the arrest of C. Chaney Wood and Charles Morris, white men, on the charge of operating the outfit.

Twenty-one gallons of corn liquor, which had just been made, was captured and 200 gallons of mash were destroyed. The still was a steam outfit, having a copper cap and worm, but the rest of it was galvanized iron.

Wood is charged with having an automatic pistol on his person at the time of the raid. Both of the men are raid to have run when the officers staged the raid, and it is said Charles Morris was slightly wounded by a shot from the officers gun.

Wood and Morris were taken to Rustburg, where bail was arranged.

R. L. Childress, W. T. Pugh, P. B. Tweedy, B. F. Tweedy and J. H. Rucker participated in the capture. Tne case will be called for trial December 2.

Dog Lost—A black dog with blaze face, white feet and legs. The dog has two tag on his collar, a male tag and female tag, one of his ears are clipped. If found return and receive the reward. Edward Smith, Appomattox, Va.

Irish Would Keep the Ogham Stones

Valentia, Irish Free State.—Kerrymen are up in arms because the most ancient of their monuments, the Ogham Stones, are being removed one by one to British museums. They likewise protest because the few remaining historic stones are being used in Ireland as gate posts and hearth stones.

Ogham was a manner of writing on stone and wood used by the ancient Irish. It is somewhat like some of the modern shorthand characters, consisting of straight or slanting lines to represent the consonants, and short straight lines to represent the vowels. One hundred and fifty kinds of Ogham writing have been used.

The Ogham stones are usually tombstones giving the name of the chieftain or clergyman buried beneath. Because of frequent clan conflicts the names of clans often are defaced. Some Ogham stones are not inscribed, and were merely landmarks to show the boundaries of clan lands, or to record battles, such as the Gates of Glory Pillars, near Ventry.

LIFE ADVENTUROUS FOR COAST GUARD

Experiences Rival Those of Pirate Days.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla.—One thrilling adventure after another, rivaling those of days when pirate ships sailed the high seas and buccaneers compelled their prisoners to walk the plank, makes up the life of coast guardsmen battling rum runners in Florida waters.

Prices have been put upon the heads of several guardsmen, officers declare, as the struggle to halt the smuggling of liquor becomes more acute. Winter's icy winds in the North are turning the bows of many runners southward, resulting in increased activity along the Florida coast.

When a slim, speedy government chaser, armed with one-pounders, closes in on the boat fitted with illegal cargo, the officers seldom know whether the crew will surrender, abandon the vessel or choose to "fight it out."

Three Killed in Battle.

There was, for example, the recent battle about thirty miles off Fort Lauderdale in which three officers were killed and a fourth wounded when coast guard boat No. 249 captured a rum runner.

The 249 was on its way to Nassau, in the Bahamas, carrying Robert E. Webster, secret service operative, to trace counterfeit $50 bills used in rum transactions, when it spotted and closed in on the rumboat and captured Horace Alderman and Robert E. Weech.

While officers transferred the cargo, Sidney Sanderlin, boatswain, sought to get in touch by radio with the Fort Lauderdale base. Suddenly, the account goes, Alderman fired down the hatch and killed Sanderlin. Victor A. Lamby, motor machinist, rushed to aid the fallen man and was mortally wounded by a bullet through his spine.

Alderman grabbed Lamby's gun, gave it to Weech and ordered the other six government men to "line up."

"Move the whisky back to our boat," he instructed Weech, "and then go below and set this government boat on fire."

As Weech went into the hold Webster jumped for Alderman. He was killed instantly with a bullet through his head. Jodie L. Hollingsworth, following the secret service man, was wounded through the eye and nose. But it was the "break," and the rest of the small crew rushed upon Alderman and Weech and overpowered them and brought them to port. They now await trial at Jacksonville for first-degree murder.

Other Smuggling Part of Job.

Closely allied with rum running is the smuggling of aliens and narcotics. An affidavit in government possession tells how a rumboat, black twenty-seven aliens from Cuba to an island off Florida, only to return in a few days to rob them of all they had. Other stories tell of aliens paying the smuggling fees, being taken aboard and being set adrift at sea or drowned.

Strategy is used oftener than force to land liquor. Submersible steel tanks, carrying about 600 cases of liquor, were used with success for a while, towed behind boats and cut adrift if guardsmen pressed too closely.

Attempts to smuggle by airplane are no longer novel. Planes can easily fly between the British Bahamas and Florida, but federal operatives now know how to deal with them. They are sighted in the air and kept from landing.

Even when rum runners desert their boats, danger lurks often in bombs with time fuses or explosives attached to the ignition. More than 5,000 miles of coast line around Florida offer innumerable bayous and inlets where rum runners try to land cargoes. To meet the situation reinforcements are being added and a section base is to be set up at St. Petersburg with a motor boat patrol of six vessels. The coast guard also uses planes.

Blind Can Read Music by Use of New Method

Jacksonville, Ill.—The blind can now read music, written in the raised dots of Braille, by "sight." With one hand the sightless player reads the music on the piano rack and plays it with the other. It takes only practice for him to memorize the notes sufficiently to play the selection with both hands.

A revolutionary step in teaching the blind, the method making possible "sight" reading of music, was perfected by L. W. Rodenberg, himself sightless, who is in charge of printing at the Illinois School for the Blind at Jacksonville. It was demonstrated for the first time at the seventh annual Illinois conference on public welfare, held in Joliet.

Previously, in printing music in Braille, all the words of a song were followed by the notes of the music. In the new method, each word is followed by the accompanying note, throughout the selection.

Their Recreation

Mexico City.—Lindbergh enjoyed himself in Paris flying new planes and Senor Schiffely, who is riding a horse from Buenos Aires to New York, has found recreation here by attending a rodeo.

Accounting for It

A study of married and single men, according to an eastern professor, shows that married men are the smarter. Well, look at the help they have.
